DENVER, July 26 /PRNewswire/ -- Richfield Hospitality, a leading hotel management company and hotel investor, today announced that it has launched a new website, www.richfield.com, to better reflect the company and its new identity.

The information-rich site is designed as per Web2.0 and best industry practices and is intended to provide hotel owners, investors, associates, media, people interested in working for Richfield and others with a comprehensive overview of the company, its operating philosophy and a full-range of hotel management and ownership services. The site engages social media with connectivity to RSS Feeds, Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter. Information is succinctly detailed to allow visitors to get a quick, but thorough understanding of the company's strengths by clearly defining the company's services, defining investment opportunities and listing available positions. The site also includes a blog about the hotel industry that is updated frequently.

The site has a confidential client intranet portal that provides real-time, transparent reporting on hotel operations and immediate communications to hotel owners. Richfield associates also have access to key company information on their intranet site.

"E-commerce has revolutionized the way the hotel industry does business, and we are employing all the Internet-based tools to better inform our constituents," said Bill Linehan, Richfield's chief marketing officer. "The site showcases our management, investment and e-marketing capabilities."

The website was designed by HospitalityeBusiness Strategies (HeBS), a strategic marketing partner and the hospitality industry's leading direct online channel strategy and hotel Internet marketing firm.
